Teaching Experience

THE-200 - Understanding Theatre – Fall 2005-Present, one section a semester.

Readings, lectures, discussion, live performances, video presentations and creative projects provide the student with the basic concepts and terms necessary to appreciate the theatre as an art, and its development as an expression of Western culture. Dramatic structure, style, purpose and effect are the keys to understanding the forms of communication among author, performer and audience. Special attention is paid to the interlocking functions of all the artists of the theatre: not only playwright and actor, but also director, designer, critic and architect.

THE-225 – Basic Theatre Technology – Fall Semester – 2004-Present

The theatre craftsman as technician and problem solver. Students are engaged in both practical and theoretical exercises in stage carpentry, scene painting, scenery rigging, lighting, drafting, acoustics, electronically amplified sound, scenic projection, stage properties, costume construction and the offstage handling of a whole production.

THE-236 – Design For The Theatre 1 – Spring Semester, 2005-Present

An introduction to the various ideas and techniques of designing in the theatre. This team-taught course will explore the fundamentals of the design process in set, lighting and costume design disciplines. Stress is placed on script analysis, design research and the shared aspects of drawing for the theatre; as well as the creative handling of the elements of design and composition as they relate to all areas of theatrical design. This course is the prerequisite for THE 336, Design for the Theatre II.

THE-336 – Design For The Theatre 2 – Arranged by student's need. Have Taught it 9 times.

The creative design process as it relates to a specific area of theatrical design, chosen from among the following types: scenic, lighting or costume. Students will build on the material from Design for the Theatre I to focus their learning in one of the three areas listed. Both artistic and practical drawings will be emphasized. Opportunities for realized designs or assisting faculty designers will be provided when possible. May be repeated for credit in each of the three design areas. Prerequisite: THE 236.

THE-393 – Seminar in Theatre – Vectorworks – 3 year rotation, have taught 4 times.

A seminar concerned with the interrelation of dramatic theory and literature with theatrical practice: questions of style, genre, period, aesthetics, politics, philosophy and cultural history. Specific topics vary each year, and the course may be taken for credit more than once. In this particular section the student will learn the basic usage of Vectorworks software for CAD. In Class exercises will complement larger scale independent projects.

THE-425 - Projects in Theatre Design and Technology – Offered as needed every year.

Student scene-, costume- and lighting-designers will form a team with student technical craftsmen to research, conceive and realize all the visual and mechanical components of a major production, under faculty direction and guidance. Prerequisite: THE 225 or 336.

ART-354 – Website Design – Spring, 2007

A course exploring digital communication on the Internet. Students will learn the integration of Adobe Designer products to design their own websites. Prerequisite: ART 101 or 104 or permission of the instructor.
